COUPLE'S FIGHT MAY BE FATAL
HARDING IS IN LIMELIGHT OF THE G.O.P.

New York Speech Accepted as Views of Powerful Party Men;
Pity and Ridicule for Wilson

By International News Service.
Chicago, April 8.—Senator Warren
G. Harding of Ohio who, as temporary chairman of the Republican Na-national Convention will sound the keynote of the 1916 campaign, to-night placed himself in the limelight as a possible presidential nominee. Speaking at the Appomattox Day banquet of the Hamilton Club, in the Hotel LaSalle, he boldly expressed views which were accepted as those of powerful influences in the party.

There was no sentimental bid for Progressive support. The Senator's notion of the 1912 election was that everybody should "forget it." More than that, there was a winning among the Roosevelt men present when the recently-created convention spokesman said:

"There must be some safe attitude between being 'too proud to fight' and magnifying the odds in the shadow of

The calls of the banqueters, among whom were members of the national committee who helped select Senator Harding for temporary chairman, were not slow to result. That the Senator himself had been proclaimed an eminently safe bet for the job was indicated by the rapid succession of announced contributions and the Oyster Bay train of automobiles.

...a right good will, pouring upon it both pity and ridicule. And he made an apology among the captains of industry present when he said a good word for Astoria.

'FLAME' EDITOR SCOFFS AT PLOT TO KILL KING

Alison Davidson, Editor of the 'Flame', scoffs at the plot to kill King.

The plot to kill King, which has been the subject of much speculation, is scoffed at by Alison Davidson, Editor of the 'Flame'. She says that the plot is a mere fabrication and that the King is safe from any harm. She also says that the plot is a mere attempt to stir up the passions of the people and that it is a mere attempt to make the King a martyr.

The crooks nearly got him, but Douglas Fairbanks won after a hard battle.

A smashing scene from "The Habit of Happiness," the newest Triangle Picture.

You'll Talk About This Picture Play

Have you forgotten how to laugh and enjoy yourself?

Did you ever cross the street to dodge an unfortunate friend, or were you ever the one passed by?

Which means the most to you—a happy smile and a hearty hand-clasp, or a scowl and an unfriendly blow?

These things form the keynote of the new big smashing TRIANGLE PLAY

"The Habit of Happiness"

that we are showing you for the first time today. You'll remember this picture next week—next year. If you're down in the world it will help you up; if you're up it will help you to stick there. If you have a heavy burden to bear it will be tons lighter after you've seen in this newest TRIANGLE PLAY teach the despondent, discouraged, sullen and shriveled wrecks of the slums how to laugh once more; turn a grouchy, dyspeptic millionaire into a human being, and win the girl of his heart in the fastest, most smashing battle against a gang of crooks you ever saw.

If you've ever seen a TRIANGLE PLAY, we don't have to tell you that they are in a class by themselves. If you haven't, now is a good time to begin. Just consider "what will you be doing while others are enjoying TRIANGLE PLAYS?"

And remember there's a Triangle Theatre near you

BIG CAST FOR 'TOWN IN DEVIUM'

Boston Young Men's Hebrew Association to Offer Its Most Ambitious Plan

The Boston Young Men's Hebrew Association will produce the most magnificent offering in its history.

Philip Brown, a young Westerner who came originally from Seattle, is the author of the play which he characterized as a musical melange. The play is composed of more than 100 songs and women, the most of which he had previous experience with the dramatic offerings of the musical theater. He had written for many parts of Great Britain.

The entrants in the cast include Miss Rose Roscholtz, Samuel L. Berger and Harry J Goodstein, all of whom were prominent in "Pinafore," the last two to be given by the association.

Among the other young men, who will take part are Sam S. Levine, Albert Williams, William I. Hays, Henry Tresser, Joseph L. Glickman, Samuel H. Rabinowitz, Louis K. Weisberg, Miss Ruth Saphire, Mrs. M. E. Hirsch, Misses Zelig and Helen Keller, Miss Pearl Weiss, Miss Fannet Green, Miss Bernice

PACKARD TWIN-SIX MAKES RECORD

On the morning of March 30 "Cootie Kade II," a Packard Twin-Six sedan, driven by Louis Nikrent, carrying full equipment, toy and ketch boat and three passengers, broke the record made by a stripped racing car from Los Angeles to Bakersfield, Cal. The distance is 124 miles, time, three hours, fourteen minutes, and Nikrent followed the celebrated Indian route, which passes through a wide strip of desert coun-

As the trip to Bakersfield was made in the early part of the morning, when the road was much in use, the trucking passed 140 cars on the various grades.

The Pakard took down three records on for Los Angeles to Bakerfield, another for Bakerfield to Los Angeles and the third for the round trip. The time for the latter was sixty hours, four minutes and thirty seconds.

Points How It Will Help Builders struction of House is Begun.

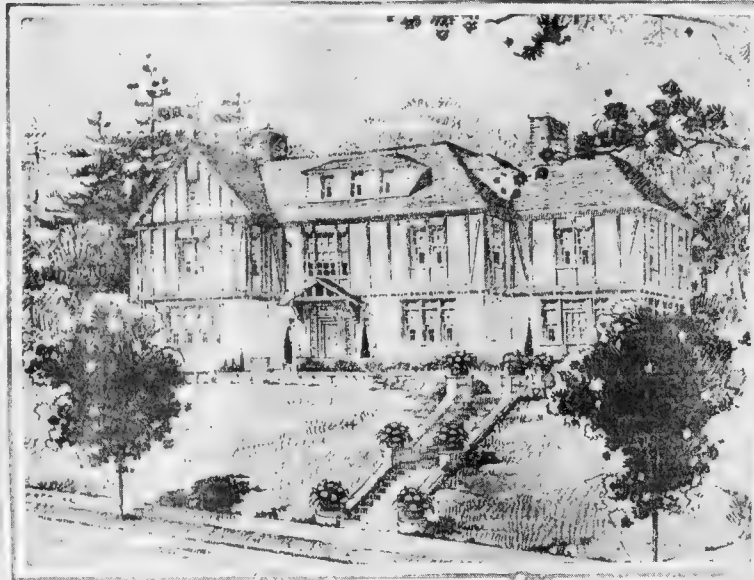

By W. T. A. FITZGERALD

Register of Wires for Building Houses

The new law which requires that plans for wiring be carefully worked out before construction of a house is begun, is a most important step in the elimination of the barriers which have hitherto stood in the way of efficient wiring. It is a step which will result in a more comfortable and safer home for the occupant, and a more profitable business for the builder.

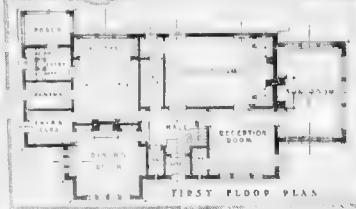

The law is a direct result of the fact that in many cases the wiring of a house is done in a haphazard manner, and the result is a system which is not only inefficient, but also a source of danger. The new law requires that the plans for wiring be drawn up by a competent electrician, and that these plans be approved by the local health department before construction is begun.

This law is a most important step in the elimination of the barriers which have hitherto stood in the way of efficient wiring. It is a step which will result in a more comfortable and safer home for the occupant, and a more profitable business for the builder.

THEIR INSURANCE HAS GIVEN IN IMPORTANCE

The importance of insurance has been given more attention than ever before. This is due to the fact that insurance is now considered a necessary part of any business or personal investment. It is a way of protecting one's assets and ensuring that they are safe in the event of a disaster.

CABBAGE AND OAK TREE

MANY a young oak tree has been rooted up to make room for a cabbage.

Many a man representing the oak tree among humans has been crowded out by the fat cabbages growing near him.

This picture and this editorial you may use to impress upon others the fact that the greatest things are the slowest and usually misunderstood. The quick successes are of the least importance and greatly exaggerated.

See that fat cabbage and the thin, scrawny little oak shoot at the top of this cartoon.

The farmer who owns the cabbage would, with a blow of his hoe, chop down the young oak for the sake of the cabbage.

What we call civilization chops down too often the human oaks to make room for the fat human cabbages of quick, passing success.

The tiny tree at the top of this picture is already two or three years old. The cabbage is but a few weeks old, its seed has done its work.

The acorn was dropped accidentally where the little oak grows and left to itself to struggle as it might.

The cabbage plant was carefully set and fertilized and cultivated.

And the thought and affection of the farmer are on that cabbage, without any feeling for the oak—just as thought of government, the national farmer, is too often upon the human cabbage and his fatness and quick prosperity, neglecting the human oak.

So much for the top picture. Now look below.

Years have passed, a hundred of them, two hundred.

Where is your cabbage? Gone, and gone also the man that planted and the man that ate it.

The oak has stood through the Winters and the hot Summers, through the storms.

Now it stands recognized as the glory of the landscape, the comfort of those that sit beneath its shade, the chief pride of the man who owns the land.

In the branches of this oak tree dwell thousands of birds that destroy insects, benefiting men and vegetation.

From the trunk of the tree later may be made the ship that shall carry men across the ocean, or the house that shall give them shelter for a hundred years.

The great man developing slowly is like this oak tree. The birds in that tree, beautiful and beneficent, are like the thoughts of greatness. And the timber that the oak supplies is like the stronger, better race that grows out of the great man's life.

Not the will of man or the will of the oak tree or cabbage decides what the creature shall be.

That cabbage could not be an oak; it grew rapidly, ended rapidly; it did its best.

From the acorn only the oak could come. The huge oak that you see was all in that acorn and the credit is with the father and mother oak, the thousands of centuries of development, not with the individual tree.

So with human beings. Not one of us can decide whether he is to be a human cabbage or a human oak.

But in our higher form of development we can at least decide HOW we shall use the power that we have.

And those of us that are cabbages can at least show sympathy to the different, strange creature beside us who may develop into the oak.

Honor the farmer who plants a cabbage field in Spring, takes good care of it, destroys the bugs, pulls out the weeds and harvests a great cabbage crop.

More honor to him who plants an oak tree, knowing that he will never see its greatness, but knowing that he is planting for the future.

Honor to the human being who is a cabbage, whose fat success comes quickly and surely with the making of money. Honor to his rotundity, his fulness, his juicy wealth.

But infinitely greater honor to the human being slowly, painfully, in poverty, facing ridicule, who struggles to do the work that is for the future that he and his family will never see, that only generations unborn will recognize.

There Are Different Kinds of Human Beings, as There Are Different Kinds of Plants. The Greatest of the Human Beings Are Misunderstood. Years and Centuries Are Required to Make Them Known.

At the Top of This Picture You See the Baby Oak Tree and the Full Grown Cabbage.

The Little Oak, Much Older Than the Cabbage, Is "Worthless." It Would Be Torn Up to Let the Cabbage Grow to Its Full Bigness.

But Below Is the Other Side of the Story. There Is the Oak, a Hundred or Two Hundred Years Later, a Blessing to the Earth—and Where Is the Cabbage?

Oak and cabbage could not be compared. Cabbage is a vegetable, oak is a tree. Cabbage is small, oak is large.

There is a story of a man who was a cabbage or a tree. He was a man who was a cabbage or a tree. He was a man who was a cabbage or a tree.

He was a man who was a cabbage or a tree. He was a man who was a cabbage or a tree. He was a man who was a cabbage or a tree.

He was a man who was a cabbage or a tree. He was a man who was a cabbage or a tree. He was a man who was a cabbage or a tree.

BE HE SUPPLIED WITH PHILOSOPHIC THOUGHT THE THINKERS THE PHILOSOPHERS OF EVERY NATION IN THE WORLD.

He stands to day a gigantic intellect and oak that has sheltered freedom of thought and given an intellectual home to humanity for centuries in the past and it will shelter centuries in the future.

We must, unfortunately, our blind nose to realize the difference between a human cabbage and a human oak tree.

We go to the cabbage for advice and say, "Look up with me!" How did you get to be such a rich, fat cabbage? And that cabbage, named Cabbage, perhaps, finally tells us how to reach the cabbage of success. It says, "Wait a short time. Then it will be clear, and we ask the next and best thing to do, the secret of success."

Would that it were possible to tell at a glance the difference between the human cabbage and the human oak. The farmer tells that difference. It is the height of an oak tree. But the world is that the oak and the cabbage are both human beings and determine their fate.

If the destiny of the oak to sprout above the ground, push out its hard and ready leaves to reach the light, that tree some day will be a great tree.

If the destiny of the cabbage to be pumpled and to rot.

And so we must be careful. Care that makes the cabbage rot and the oak tree.

And perhaps the human oak should be a little bit like the human cabbage, build their destiny.

For the cabbage is so grateful to the farmer. He plants it, he cares for it. For the oak tree is so grateful to the sun and the rain, the wind and the branches of the oak tree.

So among the human beings, gratitude for the human being to human government, which is the laws, its chief protection and its life.

For the human being, the oak are of the world, the human being, the cosmic world, the human being, the force that will be the human being, the force that will be the human being, the force that will be the human being.

One thing we know, that the human cabbage and one thing, that the human oak.

The cabbage requires protection, enclosure, care, and property, strong, and the human being, that might be the human being, the human being, the human being, the human being, the human being.

The human oak must, it needs only KNOWLEDGE and DIRECTION. These two things are supplied by the public school, by the college, by the university, by the man who is a human being, the human being, the human being, the human being, the human being.

TO DAY, the human cabbages, there could be a human cabbage soup without them. Let them have what they want.

THE FUTURE, the human oaks. And the human being, the human being, the human being, the human being, the human being.

Fatten your cabbages and protect them, but, above all, develop your public schools and deny them nothing.

Sitting on the bench in some little country schoolhouse, avoiding his lesson because his mind is on something more important, there sits the little boy who fifty years from now will be infinitely greater and more valuable to the world than all the cabbage millionaires that have been manufactured by iron, oil, hogs and land.

erty, facing ridicule, who struggles to do the work that is for the future that he and his family will never see, that only generations unborn will recognize.

The power and the persisting greatness of the Jewish race, which wise men study and fools ignore, is due to the fact that Judea has invariably honored learning.

THE echoes of Mi-Careme week are still in the air. It was an unusual fest of fun and frolic and somewhat running over the prescribed limit. Society is not set tired of talk over the wonderful charity ball, with its level and brilliant costumes and festive spirit and atmosphere. At dinners and luncheons and teas, at the opera and theatre parties or wherever else society gathered, one heard the details come over again with fresh enthusiasm.

It is certain that the Lost of 1916 has been never than for years. This is great measure because of the war entertainments and benefi ded to the customary program. Bridge, incheons and dinners with tournaments u interests of charity have been unusually po ar and will continue on for weeks to come.

Invitations for Easter weddings and announcements are appearing daily. It is used to be more touch with the Lenten spirit to defer these announcements until Easter, but in these modern days we have changed all that. So many ceremonies are booked that May, not a popular month heretofore, has dates to its credit this year. Easter Sunday coming when it does leaves only one week for April weddings, and it looks as if that of itself would make a record. It is already announced in New York that twenty ceremonies are to take place between the 24th and 29th, and Boston will follow hard upon

AVOID ALL MEAT IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Uric Acid in meat excites Kidneys and irritates the Bladder.

Take Salts at first sign of Bladder weakness or Kidney Backache

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse, again there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folk call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is superior for kidneys and cures no and effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant effective way to save water, drive it out quickly relieve the bladder trouble. Advertisement

To Revise the Ten Commandments

The Children of Israel Encamped Before Mount Sinai, Where Moses Ascended Into the Mountain to Receive the Commandments from God
From Keichner's Painting

Right Rev. Bishop Whitehead Explains Why the Time Has Now Come to Make the Laws of Moses Harmonize With the Thought and Conception of the Twentieth Century

It will come as a shock to many no doubt to learn that the Ten Commandments are under process of revision. A commission of the Protestant Episcopal Church in this country has been working on the matter, and has decided to recommend a shortened form of the law as given to Moses by Jehovah on the Mount—in form, according to Bishop Whitehead, of Pittsburgh, the chairman of the commission, more in conformity with "the thought and conception of the twentieth century" than that of the time when they were given.

This revisional body is made up of seven bishops, and is called the Commission on the Revision and Purification of the Book of Common Prayer, which is the prayerbook of the Episcopal Church. They will meet again in New York during Easter week to prepare a final report for the prayerbook. When the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church meets next October it will decide whether or not the Decalogue in the abbreviated form to be recommended will be adopted.

Bishop Whitehead in discussing the proposed changes with a representative of this newspaper said:

"The commission is almost all in the same mind regarding the changes in the wording, not in the spirit or meaning—of the Ten Commandments, so that I feel the whole church, as well as any others who may be interested for traditional reasons, ought to be enlightened as to the why and wherefore for taking up such a very important matter as the elimination or adding of anything to the Prayer Book of the Protestant Episcopal Church, several hundred years old. But after all there is not going to be any radical difference in the service regarding the Decalogue after the commission get through with it. We simply want to make the catechism lessons for children shorter, more centralized and easier to be remembered without taking out the kernel of the thought, and in the Holy Communion to eliminate a great mass of reading, that only lengthens the service unnecessarily without adding to the spirit or dignity of the worship. We want to make it plain that no changes are to be made in the Ten Commandments by the General Convention at the suggestion of the commission, and there is no need of any one becoming excited or alarmed about it.

"First, the Decalogue means 'ten words,' which indicates brevity and definiteness. Then why should we bring to bear on the minds of our parishioners all the sentences leading up to the heart of each commandment when a brief statement of the command itself will stamp it more forcibly on the mind? For instance, 'Honor thy father and thy mother' is well enough without following up all the rest of the Mosaic commandment 'that thy days may be long in the land that the Lord thy God giveth thee.' That suited the Israelites in the early days, but isn't it a fact that millions of boys and girls do honor their parents and yet do not live long?"

"Many of the commandments have argumentative qualities, but that is not the essence of the matter, and the Fourth Commandment relating to the observance of the Sabbath, is purely local. It says, 'God worked six days and rested on the seventh,' but who now believes that a day then was twenty-four hours? A day then might have been a thousand years, and we believe it was a very long time. Then why burden the minds of our people with those beliefs that belong to the dim past?"

"Then in the commandment about covetousness, it isn't necessary to go into all the details such as coveting our neighbor's house, his ass, his wife, etc., when to say 'Thou shalt not covet' means everything that can be recorded.

"In the Communion Service the people want brevity without the loss of spirituality, and in many cases the longevity of the service kills the spirit of feeling and awe to be engendered by such a sacred act of worship as the Holy Communion. Therefore the commission seeks to benefit this very important service by eliminating much of the after part of the commandments, which are merely supplementary of the effects of keeping the commandments.

"In the Catechism it is a waste of time and energy to burden the minds of the children with anything but the precept of the matter itself for if you do then everything is forgotten, and if you lop off the mass of reading that is the Catechism of today you bring the thought down to a centre of contact with the mind of the child that is going to be a Christian. Therefore we want to leave the Ten Commandments in as few words as possible, such as 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy,' without the rest of the wording, and 'Honor thy father and thy mother,' without the supplementary parts.

"In a word, the wording of the Decalogue in the Prayer Book is going to be brought up to the thought and conception of the twentieth century, rather than that of the time of Moses and the Israelites, eliminating all unnecessary phrases and putting the explicit command of God in succinct form, emphatically, dignifiedly and spiritually, so that it will leave its impression on the mind of a child, and that it will be remembered. The revised Decalogue, as approved by the commission, is as follows:—

I. Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy strength, with all thy power.
II. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.
III. Thou shalt not covet.
IV. Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.
V. Honor thy father and thy mother.
VI. Thou shalt not kill.
VII. Thou shalt not commit adultery.
VIII. Thou shalt not steal.
IX. Thou shalt not bear false witness.
X. Thou shalt not desire the wife of thy neighbor, neither his house, nor his land, nor his man-servant, nor his maid-servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor anything that is his.

*Surprising Illusion of

That Can Be Given
Men and Women of Too

These in the laboratory were then asked to judge individually the ratio of the height to the diameter, the diameter being considered as unity. The results are presented in Figure 1, ranging from 0.5 to 1.5. The measurements were taken by the subject and the height and diameter were measured by the experimenter.

This is all a matter of the selection of the proper lines and their proper application to her clothes. With the right lines rightly applied, she can create a deceiving illusion of height and slenderness as the architect does with his huge structures of brick and stone.

The trouble with the stout woman's clothes in the past has been the utter disregard which their makers have shown for certain well known scientific laws. They have insisted that because a woman was stout she could not dress in the prevailing styles without looking ridiculous. They made her dresses a series of broad, perfectly plain stretches of fabric unrelieved by any frills or furbelows.

There could be no greater mistake than this. The plainer a stout woman's dress is the more unrelieved the expenses of fabric the broader and more conspicuous it makes her look. Let us explain briefly what lines the stout woman should avoid or subdue in her dress and what lines she should emphasize.

Horizontal lines are never good for the stout woman. If they must be used, they must be broken or relieved in some way.

All lines that tend toward the horizontal should have a downward curve if the stout woman is to look her best. A straight line is nothing better to accentuate the bad effect of the shoulder masses of flesh found over the shoulder blades of many women than lines curving downward and toward the front.

Horizontal lines, of course, cannot be entirely avoided, but wherever they appear they must be broken or softened. The emphasis must always be placed on the vertical.

The unpleasant effect produced by undue fullness through the back, an effect very common among American women, is successfully overcome by a liberal use of panels, pleats and broken belt effects. Panel seams are excellent for making the bust appear smaller than it really is, and so are revers if long and pointed.

The scientific designer of clothes for stout women uses buttons liberally. No other simple mode of trimming a dress will do more to make its wearer look tall and slender. They are employed in various ways to relieve the belt, and a long line of them down the front of a skirt will often make a woman look six inches taller and fifty pounds lighter.

Some of the more elaborate draperies which are new so popular with the woman, provided they are chosen in accordance with the principles which I am outlining in this series of articles. These draperies should always be carried below the hip line and their effect will be greatly enhanced by the skilful use of Each and every part of a gown must be made to assist in creating the desired illusion. Even the pockets can be made to play an important part in producing the desired effect if they are given the proper curve or angle.

It is surprising to see how much can be accomplished by a proper handling of the

"The tendency of the human eye is always to overestimate the height of anything it sees. A silk hat looks at least 25 per cent taller than its top is wide, but as a matter of fact the two measurements are precisely the same. The optical illusion explains why silk hats are called 'high,' when they are really no higher than most other hats."

most trivial details about a dress, the color, the reverse will work wonders in giving a woman a feeling of being "in the know" and in controlling the situation. It is a very old and effective technique. It is often all that is needed to make a woman feel that she is in control of the situation. It is a technique that would otherwise be quite valuable in the business world for the saleswoman.

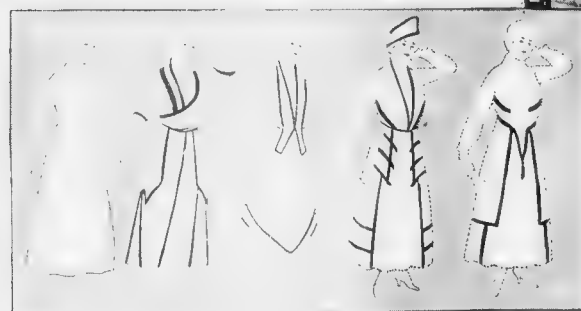

Pointed effects are employed everywhere just as they are in Gothic architecture. Pointed panels in the back reduce its width. They are also quite necessary when dealing with a large area on the back.

Until recently it would have been almost absurd for any stout woman to attempt to wear ruffles. These however are fast within the bounds of propriety, and her skirts are broken by curves, showing a little up and down inside of a foot or so of the feet. Even horizontal trim is no longer worn by the stout woman, and skillful

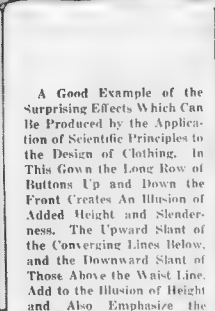

Let me repeat that the secret of good dressing for the stout woman lies in the choice of the proper line. It is a translation to her gowns in accordance with scientific principles. To attain the proper effect a good corset is the first essential. And the stout woman must never forget that the function of the corset is not to hold up the figure but to give it harmony.

The lines of the stout woman should always taper toward that part of the figure which she wishes to make appear smaller. These lines, remember, are not necessarily have to complete themselves in the garment. They may be only carried a little distance, but in even that short length they furnish a suggestion which the eye is able to complete so that it gets the desired illusion.

In this Magazine Section next Sunday Mrs. Mason will explain what colors and materials the stout woman should select, and how she should combine them in her gowns.

On the left, a "stout" woman appearing "stouter" than ever in a plain, unadorned gown. On the right, the same woman in gowns constructed on scientific principles. Note what a pleasant effect of height and slenderness is created in each of the four gowns on the right by the liberal use of vertical and slanting lines, pointed panels, broken belt line, curved bodices, etc.

A Good Example of the Surprising Effects Which Can Be Produced by the Application of Scientific Principles to the Design of Clothing. In This Gown the Long Row of Buttons Up and Down the Front Creates an Illusion of Added Height and Slenderness. The Upward Slant of the Converging Lines Below, and the Downward Slant of Those Above the Waist Line Add to the Illusion of Height and Also Emphasize the Smallness of the Waist.

In fact, the more the boss has in mind, therefore, a clear picture of the ideal in efficiency must first be recorded, and then the rules can be made to help him understand the relative importance of all the picture's details.

When the office boy has had many various and often conflicting rules to obey, but in the abstract sense they have meant nothing more to him than a rule, and he has never been personally compelled to follow the rules, yet he made little appeal to his sense of right, and his efficiency suffered accordingly.

It was with this fact in mind that a concern employing a large force of office boys, and desiring to encourage efficiency among their youthful employees, The contest enabled the

At the close of the contest prizes were given to the three winners. Every lad who participated reaped an education advanced. The entire force now rears the young men of the school, and is paid of it. Each boy owed it to himself and to his firm to live up to the new standard.

Would Your Watch Stand Baking?

ONLY the best-made watches would ever survive the tests. Watches are made to undergo at the Royal Observatory in Greenwich, England. Usually there are always about two hundred watches under examination at the observatory for use in the British navy. On certain occasions there is a complete trial of chronometers open to all makers who have sufficient confidence in their watches being able to withstand the severity of the tests.

During the competition the watches are exposed to extreme variations of temperature. They are baked in a furnace sufficiently hot to cook a roast of meat. In fact, so great is the heat that a badly made watch has been known to be baked to pieces during the baking process. The most accurate watch is taken out of the oven and is plunged into mixtures registering forty degrees of frost. To such perfection has the manufacture of some chronometers attained that even the most stringent tests fail to cause the slightest variation in the accuracy with which they tick off the seconds.

[illegible]

"Mr. Becker, you wish to die as a good Christian, don't you?"

"Indeed I do, Father," he replied.

"Then you must die as Christ did, who forgave His enemies—you must forgive that man."

We sat shoulder to shoulder upon his cot. At my last words a quick turn of his head brought us closer, face to face. Through his eyes I could see the tumult of his soul. "Must I forgive him, Father?" he asked.

"Yes," I replied, "as Christ dying on the cross forgave those who crucified him, as Stephen forgave and prayed for those who stoned him to death, as David forgave his unnumbered sin."

He started quickly on his feet, the white wax around me and, resting his head upon my shoulder, he kissed me repeatedly and cried like a child.

When, after a short interval, he said to me:

"Father, you are the only man who has given me that many kisses. I am glad that I would never have been born if it is now over."

fully satisfied me that his soul was in the proper mood for the reception of the sacraments of his church.

Then for confession, he knelt on the floor of his cell, using, at my suggestion, the gray prison blanket under his knees as a cushion, while he rested his hands upon his cot. He knelt there like a boy of ten or twelve years, who might be preparing for his first reception of the sacraments, with that look of absolute trust, perfect confidence and interior peace upon his face, such as we always see in the faces of our little children. Indeed, as I looked down into his upturned face, he seemed happy.

After his confession the children were consumed in prayers, preparatory for Holy Communion. With his arm around my waist and mine around his, with our free hands we each held the book of prayers. Once he interrupted the prayers and

"Why, Father, you are nervous—what are you nervous about?"

I assured him that I was not nervous, that my hand usually trembled somewhat. Father Cashion here brought in the Blessed Sacrament, and on a small shelf used as a table in the cell he made the necessary preparations for the administration of Holy Communion. I administered Holy Communion, and what a touching picture it would have been to outsiders if their eyes could have come into the cell on that moment.

The good priest, Father Cashin, the friend of the prisoners and of everybody, knelt at the door of the cell, repeating the response: within, toward the rear of his cell, Becker knelt, awaiting to receive the Sacrament between the two I stood, Becker's priest-friend, who had worked five years to save his body and its life, all in vain, but now I was certain that I had done more, for, after God, I had saved him.

The prayers of thanksgiving after Holy Communion were said by Becker with me for a few moments. Father Cuslin then suggested short, ejaculatory, risky indulgent prayers, and as Father Cuslin was a very good man, I said them. I said them to Becker and I repeated them. Becker suggested the beautiful prayer, dear to every Catholic heart, namely, the "Hail, Holy Queen, Mother of Mercy," etc.

Becker read it aloud most impressively, and said, "Isn't that beautiful?" and he repeated it, and again he said it the third time. From his tone and manner there could be no doubt but that the prayer was heartfelt and sincere.

As well as I thought I knew and understood Becker, he was

THE END

There is a machine called novel-writing. It is used by those who either it is easy or not to write by the hundred thousands of words. It is used by those who have turned their attention to mechanics for a month or two. It could make a typewriter attachment that would do it, like the calculating attachment that has lately come into use. The odd thing is that people see it, use it. They swallow it in doses of three hundred pages at a time, and they are not at all keen on Shakespeare. Usually, when my facilities decay I use the Bennett case back to writing paper.

The Bible Account of the Creation of Man, the Animals, etc., in Six Days—By Burne-Jones.

The Bible and the Sabbath

On the seventh day God ended His work which He had made: and He rested on the seventh day from all His work which He had made.

And God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it; because that in it He had rested from all His work which God created and made.

genesis 4.1, 2-3.

Six days shall work be done; but the seventh day is the sabbath of rest, a holy convocation; ye shall do no work therein.

Larivatus xxiu, 3.

And He said unto them, the sabbath was made for man and not man for the sabbath.

and had a routine that occurred every day. On Saturdays, he would go to the production Sunday school at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, where he was made to recite the Sunday school motto of the church, but he had no personal interest in it as different from the work days.

There is a great deal of evidence to suggest that the "new" social movements are not just a passing fad, but a significant and lasting part of the social and political landscape. The movements have managed to bring issues that were previously ignored into the public sphere, and they have succeeded in forcing governments and corporations to take action. The movements have also created a sense of community and solidarity among their members, and they have inspired a new generation of activists. The movements have shown that it is possible to effect change through non-violent means, and they have provided a model for other social movements around the world. The movements have also helped to create a more inclusive and equitable society, and they have paved the way for a more just and sustainable future.

Answers in the Question,
Does the person I love love me?

If thou art discreet,
 thou shalt gain the suit in which thy heart is sed.

The hand of thy beloved will ultimately reward thy affection.

Thou art more beloved than thou canst be now aware of.

Persevere, and give of thy suit up lightly.

The heart of thy beloved wavereth between thee and another: prove your opportunities.

Fear not that another will supplant thee in the affections of thy beloved.

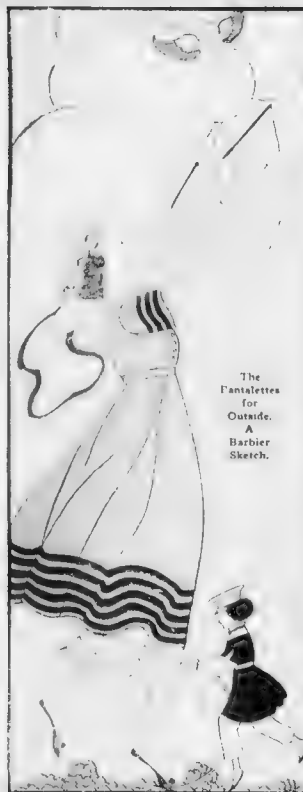

Success will attend thy anxious hopes if thou art discreet.

A return of affection is at present doubtful, but perseverance may ensure thee success.

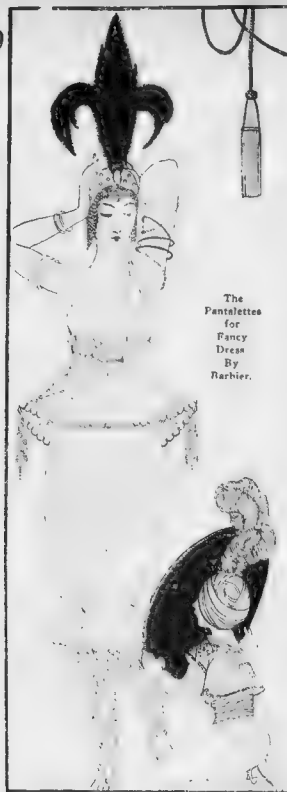

Thou shalt in time attain to greater happiness in this matter than thou

Spring Fashion Fads

By Lady Duff-Gordon

The Pantalettes for Outside. A Barbier Sketch.

The Pantalettes for Fancy Dress By Barbier.

Newest Spring Model, Showing Wide Skirt, Corsage Fringe and One of the Newest Spring Fads in Headdresses.

LADY DUFF-GORDON, the fashion "Lucile" of London, and foremost creator of fashions in the world, writes each week the fashion article for this newspaper, presenting all that is newest and best in styles for well-dressed women.

Lady Duff-Gordon's Paris establishment brings her into close touch with that centre of fashion. Lady Duff-Gordon's American establishments are at Nos. 17 and 19 West Fifty-seventh street, New York, and No. 1400 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

By Lady Duff-Gordon ("LUCILE")

WHAT are called "fads," but which are really the usual advanced groupings of new ideas—the shadows that are cast before impending fashion changes—will be many this Spring.

The pantalette is one of them—although it seems not quite right to call the pantalette a fad. My own idea is that this garment is so useful that it has come to stay. Indeed, I do not know why women ever rejected it.

There are some very charming Spring and summer dresses with the fashionable short skirt. Below this skirt from two to three inches there will be seen the charming little loose pantalettes that were so characteristic many seasons ago. It is those that can, perhaps, popularly be called "faddish," although they are really charming when done just right.

Things that are not "faddish" are those which are used with evening dresses for dancing. These are modest, and they are useful. A woman has much more freedom in them than she has when she has to think all the time about the swishing of her skirt.

Parasols are going to be gay, more fantastic, more bizarre than they have ever been. They are also going to be more expensive. Indeed, the same ingenuity which has been shown in decorating shoes with jewels and embroidery has now been transferred to the parasol.

There are parasols of the costliest materials in which is interwoven the most expensive lace, extraordinary embroideries and even real gems. The large picture shows some of the fads which will be fashions. I call attention particularly to the little fringe around the shoulders and the quiet headdress, and also the very interesting effects of the gathered draperies about the hips.
